University strategy / Library mission

Learning Plan 2013-17

“it is the pedagogy that drives our choice of the technology that we use in our teaching, and that the technological tools must be used to enhance the key attributes of good teaching and learning” (McManus, 2012, p. 52)

Library Mission

is to support the University’s strategic goals by “providing access to high quality scholarly information resources, client focused services, and physical and online spaces that support teaching and research at the University.”

University of Queensland Library Collection

- Over 2 million physical format resources
- Over 116,800 distinct journal titles in electronic and/or physical format
- Over 1,000 databases to guide clients to content
- Multiple copies of textbooks held, including copies in High Use Collections for quick access
- Over 1,000,000 electronic books
- Over 38,000 DVDs, VHS, video streams, and audio CD items
- Comprehensive quick reference collection
- Extensive manuscript, microform and pictorial collections

Teaching and Learning Service (TALS) 2011 – March 2015

Responsible for:

- Learning Resources
- Developing online instructional tutorials
- Developing and delivering generic information skills classes
- Document delivery for library staff and students
- Collection Maintenance
- Frontline Circulation services
- Student I.T. assistance (AskIT)

ENGG1200: About this guide

A guide to research skills for engineers

About this guide Scope the topic Find Evaluate Save and Cite Preliminary Memo Further Help

About this guide

The ENGG1200 Library Guide shows you how to find Prior Art for your ENGG1200 Preliminary Memo. The guide builds on the content of the ENGG1100 Library Guide to further develop the research skills you need both as a student and a professional engineer.

Effective research is a step-by-step process

1. Scope : analyse the topic
2. Find : relevant resource
3. Evaluate : your sources
4. Save : manage your references
5. Cite : correctly

Work through each topic from the menu at the top of the page to improve your research skills and find better references for your assignment.

MOOCs and UQx

The UQx team is tasked with:

- Exploring best practices in teaching and learning through technology-enabled methods and transfer this back to the campus.
- Collaborating with top research institutions that are seeking to enhance their on-campus learning.
- Providing access to emerging technologies, rich sources of data, and collaborative insights from edX consortium members.
- Providing the opportunity to expand UQ's reach to learners around the globe (UQx).

UQx and the Library

Library support for UQ MOOCs includes:

- Copyright
- Licensing
- Identifying Open Educational Resources (OER) – textbooks, articles, book chapters, media, etc
- Working with publishers
- Assisting in identifying/creating open alternatives to copyrighted material
