Get Started

Every year, we run our Get Started campaign, which introduces the Library's services to new and returning students. In 2021, our Get Started offer included an on-campus fair, virtual fair, online drop-ins and virtual asynchronous support.

Over the course of three weeks, we saw almost 600 students at the online drop-ins, with 60% being postgraduates.

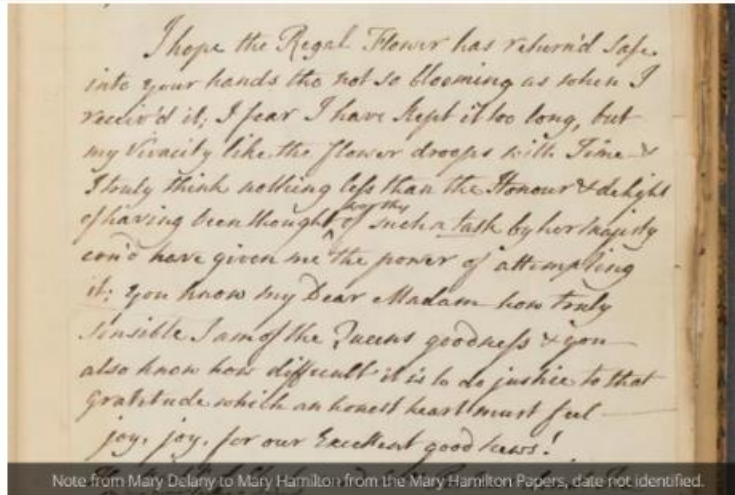

We also launched a bespoke asynchronous online resource and a dedicated support page and form to simplify and speed up the process of embedding support in the curriculum.

We fulfilled 41 requests to embed materials for Get Started with a 99% positive response from students. Comments from those surveyed included specific reference to the 'how-to' videos, My Learning Essentials resources, and 'hearing other students' experiences'.

Exam and Assessment Support

During the exam periods, the Library provided students with additional support for assessment. In 2021, this comprised 20 workshops and drop-ins (including the popular Calm your Brain session run by the University's Counselling Team), 124 promotional tweets, and a selection of asynchronous online resources embedded in 13 academic spaces.

Manchester Digital Collections

2021/22 marked the shift from the initial funded Research Lifecycle Manchester Digital Collections (MDC) project and into embedding MDC as a service available to researchers and staff across the University.

There have been 14 major content releases on MDC, doubling the number of items with more than 200,000 images now available. One of the major achievements of the year has been the launch of the digital edition of the Mary Hamilton Papers. This multi-year Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) funded project is now coming to its conclusion after significant collaboration between the research team and Library. A significant amount of work has gone into developing high quality viewable transcriptions of the letters that users can interact with to identify editorial features and key historical characters mentioned in the letters. In addition to this, the MDC development team have developed a vastly improved homepage for the edition which allows users to view summaries of each letter and to search and filter the collection by title, author, date and several other key parameters.

Work is continuing to develop our second major digital collection of the Heinrich Simon papers, funded by the Leverhulme Trust as a partnership between the researchers and Library colleagues. Developers have been
