Top trends in academic libraries

A review of the trends and issues

This article summarizes trending topics in academic librarianship from the past two years—a time of tremendous upheaval and change, including a global pandemic, difficult reflections concerning racial justice, and war between nation states. Rapid changes and uncertainty from these events have created a significant amount of shifts to academic libraries, higher education, and society in general. Such shifts have yielded new perspectives and innovations in how librarians approach delivering services, supporting student success, managing staff and physical spaces, embracing new technology, and managing data. This report attempts to provide a snapshot of developments worth noting.

A conceptual illustration where a lightbulb's shape is defined by a network of colorful ropes (purple, green, red, blue, orange, teal) knotted together. The ropes radiate outwards from a central point, forming the outline of a lightbulb. At the bottom of this rope structure is a realistic, dark-colored incandescent lightbulb. The text 'Bibliotecario incrustado' is centered within the rope structure.

THANK YOU

A close-up photograph of a hand holding large, 3D, metallic letters that spell out 'THANK YOU'. The letters are arranged in two rows: 'THANK' on top and 'YOU' on the bottom. The hand is positioned behind the letters, with fingers gripping them. The background is dark and out of focus, showing a blurred figure of a person in a white shirt and tie. The lighting highlights the metallic texture and three-dimensional quality of the letters.
